Emblem of St Peter

Brief description: Surviving stained glass base panel of a lancet window. Emblem of St Peter. Angel bearing inscribed scroll with above inscription. Designed by John Hardman Powell, made by John Hardman and Co, 1852.

An elaborate border of flowers and blue patterning frames this light, which is dedicated to St. Peter. At the bottom, an angel, dressed in red and yellow with orange and green wings, carries a scroll with St. Peter's Latin name (Petrus). A star shines near their feet. The angel is enclosed in a quatrefoil (four-lobed) frame, formed of black glass with orange details, which snakes around the rest of the details. Above them, floral details in green and white enclose a framed diamond of blue florals. Above that, a scroll spans three circles of framing, giving St. Peter's full Latin name (Sanctus Petrus).
