

The Temptation of St Anthony

Brief description: Stained glass panel depicting the torment of St Anthony surrounded by nightmarish females and hellish visions. Designed and made by Patrick Reyntiens in 1985.

St Anthony led a strict ascetic life as a hermit. He was greatly tormented by hallucinations, in the form of demons and erotic visions, which he resisted with prayer. This panel was made by Patrick Reyntiens (1925-2021) in 1980. Reyntiens has employed a variety of techniques including acid etching and plating, in which two or more pieces of glass are sandwiched together to create a dramatic effect. Well-known as the interpreter of the stained-glass designs of John Piper (1903-1992), Reyntiens was one of Britain's most talented 20th century stained-glass artists, with windows in Southwell Cathedral, Ampleforth Abbey and Washington, DC.

Object type: panel

Number of objects: 1

Production date: 1984

Production period: 20th century, late

Designer: Patrick Reyntiens

Manufacturer: Reyntiens, Patrick 1925=2021

Dimensions: Height: 1060 mm, Width: 912 mm

Acquisition: purchase 1999

Acquisition source:

Bibliographical references: Catalogue of Bruton Gallery

Accession number: ELYGM:1999.1

Permalink: <https://stainedglassmuseum.com/object/ELYGM:1999.1>

The Temptation of St Anthony

