

Composite panel

Brief description: A composite panel roughly in the shape of a square made up of an assortment of medieval glass fragments leaded together at a later date, possibly 18th century.

A composite panel roughly in the shape of a square. Contains two diamond quarries (mostly complete), a fleur-de-lys, possible foliage, a decorative pattern on red flashed glass, with blue, flashed red glass and green infills. Four border pieces: a red flashed rectangle, blue tinged white glass rectangle, painted square motif with silver stain and a square of green glass. Two copper ties remain at the top of the panel with attached wire.
