

Crucifixion

Brief description: A painting of stained glass panel. The panel depicts the crucifixion. Painting by Nevil Truman based on a panel at Croxton Church, Lincolnshire.

A painting of a stained glass panel depicting the crucifixion with two attending figures. In the centre of the scene is Jesus nailed to the cross. He wears a yellow loincloth and halo. On the left is the Virgin Mary wearing a white garment and a yellow cloak from the waist down. She has a yellow halo and holds a blue book with a St Andrew's cross and four circles between the arms. St John is on the right of the scene. He wears a yellow halo and undergarment, while his tunic is white. At the top left of the scene is the sun, while at the top right is the moon, with a 'man in the moon' profile. The whole scene is set on a red background and the cross is green.
