

Angels with Harps

Brief description: A design of two angels playing harps. Designed by William De Morgan. This detail has been identified as relating to a set of windows from the Church of St Lawrence, Little Stanmore, Middlesex. One window from this church is now in the collection of The Stained Glass Museum, while others have been redisplayed at the North London Collegiate School. The design matches the top of the St Cecilia window at the NLCS.

A design in a roundel shape of two angels who are facing away from each other. The angels are playing harps.
